PREFACE

The Ponapean-English Dictionary is based on materials gathered primarily during the years 1971 to 1975 while its compilers were students at the University of Hawaii. This work was carried out as part of a larger project that additionally involved the development of a standard orthography and a reference grammar for Ponapean. Support for this project was provided by the government of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands in cooperation with the Culture Learning Institute of the East-West Center and the Pacific and Asian Linguistics Institute (now the Social Science Research Institute) of the University of Hawaii.

While this dictionary bears the distinction of being the first book-length compilation of Ponapean vocabulary to be published, it is not without a number of important predecessors. In 1880 the Reverend Luther H. Gulick published an article in the American Oriental Society Journal entitled "A Vocabulary of the Ponapean Dialect, Ponapean-English and English-Ponapean: With a Grammatical Sketch." This study included an estimated 2,700 Ponapean to English and 3,500 English to Ponapean entries. A dictionary of approximately 5,000 Ponapean to English entries was completed in 1950 by Fr. Paulino Cantero, a native speaker of Ponapean. Cantero's work, entitled Ponapean-English Dictionary, expanded considerably on Gulick's study, but unfortunately it was circulated only in a mimeographed form and copies of this important work are now rare. Another dictionary project was undertaken during the summers of 1968 and 1969 by Alan Burdick, then a Peace Corps volunteer in Ponape. The result of this effort was a highly useful booklet, also produced in perishable form, entitled Dictionary of the Ponapean Language. It included approximately 1,500 Ponapean to English and 750 English to Ponapean entries.

The contributions of these earlier works were invaluable in the preparation of this dictionary. Building upon the foundation they provided, it has been possible to expand this dictionary beyond the scope of its predecessors in two ways. First, a larger number of entries were included. This dictionary contains approximately 6,750 Ponapean to English and 4,200 English to Ponapean entries. Second, more information was generally incorporated into each entry. The criteria for determining which entries were included and a description of the types of information contained within entries are presented in the following Introduction.

In spite of the enlarged scope of this dictionary, it must be emphasized that it is still far from being complete. Many Ponapean words have been either intentionally or inadvertently omitted. Comparisons with dictionaries the size of those for English should therefore not give rise to comparisons about the relative complexities of these two languages. The extensive dictionaries that are available for a language like English are the result of enormous investments in time and money—far more of both than were available for this project. This dictionary must thus be understood as representing only an intermediate step toward the goal of producing a truly comprehensive dictionary of Ponapean.

The task of preparing this dictionary has been at once the source of many challenges and rewards. The challenges derived primarily from the difficulties involved in trying to document accurately the information that must be included in a bilingual dictionary. This endeavor required not only a good knowledge of the structure of both target languages, but additionally—and unrealistically—expertise in all aspects of both target cultures. The rewards resulted largely from the task of gathering the information. Eliciting new entries and trying to understand their usage provided many new and interesting insights into both languages and cultures. These activities also put the compilers in contact with many perceptive people who generously shared their time and their knowledge of Ponapean.

It would be impossible to name everyone who has played a role in the development of this dictionary, but the contributions of a number of individuals were so extensive that they merit special recognition. Marcelino Actouka invested hundreds of hours adding new entries and improving those already collected. Alan Burdick and Ewalt Joseph also offered countless valuable suggestions for improving this work. Much of the information concerning honorific speech was provided by Linter Hebel. Ioakim David also contributed information on honorific speech, house parts, and plant names. Godfred Bartolome and Santiago Edmond provided many fish names, and Lotis Seneris was especially helpful in the investigation of Ponapean numerals. Additional assistance in checking entries as well as in adding new ones came from Hanover Ehsa, Oliper Joseph, Rodrigo Mauricio, Paulino Rosario, Casiano Shoniber, Gideon David, and Weldis Welley. James Abrams, William Hubbard, Terry Malinowski, and Ellen Zunino also shared data on Ponapean they collected while serving as Peace Corps volunteers on Ponape. The Reverend Harold Hanlin suggested a number of improvements, as did Elaine Good, Sheldon Harrison, and Hiroshi Sugita. The latter also served as the consultant for identifying Japanese loanwords. Robert Hsu and Ann Peters were responsible for the design of the computer programs that ordered the mass of linguistic data out of which this dictionary grew, and, in addition, they provided much valuable help throughout the production of this work. Assistance in proofreading was given by James Tharp. Cynthia Dalrymple, Doreen Yamamoto, and Melody Actouka did most of the keypunching, and Mrs. Actouka additionally suggested many improvements in format and content. Donald Topping served as general editor and as the director of the project which sponsored this dictionary. To all of these individuals and to any others whose names we may have inadvertently omitted, we wish to express our sincere appreciation. For the faults of this work, we alone accept full responsibility.

INTRODUCTION

Ponapean is the native language of the indigenous people of the island of Ponape. Ponape is located approximately halfway between Hawaii and Indonesia at 6°54' north latitude and 158°14' east longitude within the geographic area known as Micronesia. Ponape and its two satellite atolls, Pakin and Ant, are also known as the Senyavin Islands. On older maps, Ponape alone is sometimes called Ascension Island.

Ponapean is a Nuclear Micronesian member of the large family of languages named Austronesian. At present, there are approximately 15,000 native speakers of Ponapean. Along with English, this language serves as a lingua franca for the linguistically diverse Ponape District of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. While no detailed language variation studies have been conducted in this area, on the island of Ponape itself two major dialects of Ponapean may be easily discerned. These are: (1) the Kiti dialect, spoken primarily in the municipality of that name, and (2) the Main or Northern dialect, spoken on the rest of the island. The varieties of speech spoken on three neighboring atolls—Ngatik, Pingelap, and Mokil—are very closely related to Ponapean and, along with Ponapean, are to varying degrees mutually intelligible. Collectively, the language of all these speech communities is called Ponapeic. Other languages classified as Nuclear Micronesian are Gilbertese, Marshallese, Kusaiean, the Trukic languages, and probably Nauruan.

The major grammatical features of Ponapean have been described in the companion volume to this work, entitled Ponapean Reference Grammar, henceforth abbreviated PRG. Consequently, the scope of this introduction will be limited to providing information helpful in using this dictionary. Where it is necessary to employ grammatical terminology that may be unfamiliar to the reader, cross references to the PRG are provided.

The introductory materials that follow are divided into three main sections. The first section serves as a Guide to the Use of the Dictionary. It describes the organization of the dictionary, explains the arrangement of Ponapean-English entries, and includes advice on locating affixed words. The second section briefly comments on Ponapean Orthography. Dialect considerations in spelling and the Ponapean alphabet are the topics of this section. The third section is captioned About This Dictionary. It sets forth the aims of the dictionary and the major sources of entry information. Every user of this dictionary is urged to read these materials.

1. Guide to the Use of the Dictionary

Because the mass of information that must be included within a dictionary is so great, special procedures for organizing and arranging the information must be employed. The purpose of this guide is thus to acquaint the user with these procedures so that he will be able to employ this dictionary with maximum efficiency and understanding.

1.1 The Organization of the Dictionary

The main body of this work is divided into two parts. The first part consists of a Ponapean-English Dictionary and the second part of an English-Ponapean Finder List. The distinction that is made between the terms dictionary and finder list is important. Whereas the Ponapean-English dictionary attempts to list at least all high-frequency lexical items that occur in Ponapean, the finder list includes only those key English words that are used in the definitions of Ponapean entries. Therefore, this list is designed as a supplement to the dictionary to help the user find Ponapean-English entries. A typical entry that might occur in the finder list is illustrated by the following example.

accent

accent, dialect, tune, tone: ngohr.

to speak with an accent: sis<sub>1</sub>

Further information about the usage of the Ponapean words ngohr and sis<sub>1</sub> is presented in the Ponapean-English entries for these words.

1.2 The Arrangement of Ponapean-English Entries

A Ponapean-English entry may be divided into as many as eight parts, each of which contains a different kind of information. The order of presentation of these eight parts is: (1) headword, (2) alternate spellings, (3) usage label, (4) grammatical label, (5) definitions, (6) phrase or sentence examples, (7) loan source, and (8) cross reference. The conventions employed for these parts are described below.

(1) Headword. Every entry begins with a headword printed in boldface type. All headwords, including proper nouns, compounds of two or more words, and affixes, are entered in the following alphabetical order: a(h), e(h), i(h), o(h), oa(h), u(h), k, l, m, mw, n, ng, p, pw, r, s, d, t, w. Conventional Ponapean alphabetical order is therefore employed except that long vowels, signaled by writing h after a vowel, are alphabetized immediately after corresponding short vowels. This procedure is employed to assist the user who may be uncertain about vowel length in a word he is attempting to locate. The following words illustrate this alphabetical practice.

au	kehse
ahu	par
id	pahr
ihd	dau
kese	dahu

Introduction

Proper nouns begin with a capital letter. A hyphen before or after a headword indicates that the headword can never occur alone and must always be used in combination with another word or an affix. Headwords that are spelled the same way, but are unrelated in meaning, are entered separately with subscript numerals, as in the following examples.

Headword	Meaning
ah <sub>1</sub>	'name of the letter a '
ah <sub>2</sub>	'his, her, its'
ah <sub>3</sub>	'however, and'
ah <sub>4</sub>	'shark mullet'
ah <sub>5</sub>	'Oh!'

Further information about headwords is given in section 1.3.

(2) Alternate Spellings. Some headwords in this dictionary are listed with alternate spellings. These alternate spellings are listed after the headword, as in the following examples.

ahia, also iahia
aine, also ainih
akadahn, also kaladahn or lakadahn

Alternate spellings are given for headwords that have two or more common pronunciations that are not simply regular dialect variants of each other. If two or more variant spellings of a word exist, each is entered as a headword in its proper place.

(3) Usage Label. Headwords that are limited in usage to a particular time or social situation are identified by the use of one of the following labels printed in small capitals.

ARCHAIC. This label indicates that the headword is rarely used except in certain restricted contexts, such as legends, chants, or historical narratives.

HONORIFIC. The term honorific is used to label headwords that are part of the Ponapean meing (or high language) that is used to convey respect when speaking to or of one's superiors. Finer distinctions of usage within honorific speech—such as what words should be used when addressing a holder of a particular traditional political title—are not specified by this label. Occasionally such distinctions are indicated in the definition, but a complete and accurate description of honorific speech awaits further research.

POLITE. This term is used to label headwords that are not part of the honorific system, but are used in formal situations in place of words that might be considered common or vulgar.

SLANG. This label is used for headwords or usages that are not regarded as standard, but are commonly employed in informal contexts. Such words or usages are often short-lived, but some become part of the common vocabulary.

A few users of an earlier draft of this dictionary have suggested that certain headwords should be excluded because they are vulgar. Following the advice of the Ponapean Orthography Committee, such headwords have not been omitted. Further, the label vulgar has not been employed, since meaningful criteria for such a label must almost always be based upon contextual usage, rather than intrinsic meaning.

(4) Grammatical Labels. Every Ponapean entry contains a label printed in italics that specifies the grammatical function of the headword. The abbreviations and conventions used for these labels are described below. Definitions for all the grammatical terms used in these labels may be found by consulting the index of the PRG.

Nouns

- n.* noun
n (3s: ____). noun that may occur with possessive suffixes
 The form of the noun enclosed in parentheses and preceded by 3s: is the third person singular form of the possessed noun. For example, the headword mahs is labeled n(3s: mese); mahs means 'face' and mese means 'his, her, or its face'. Native speakers consider the third person singular form of nouns of this class to be the basic possessed form.
- n3s.* noun that always occurs with possessive suffixes
 The headword is given in the third person singular form, but 'his, her, or its' is not included in the definition. For example, sepe is labeled n3s and is defined as 'cheek', not as 'his, her, or its cheek'.
- poss. cl.* possessive classifier
 The headword is given in the third person singular form, except for the two common classifiers ah and nah, for which all possessed forms are entered as headwords.
- prep. n.* prepositional noun
 The headword is given in the third person singular form or in a bound form.
- rel. n.* relational noun
 The headword is given in a bound form.

Verbs

- adj.* adjective
vi. intransitive verb
 Active and resultative distinctions for these verbs are specified by the nature of the definition. Therefore, the active intransitive verb mwenge is translated 'to eat' while the resultative intransitive verb lop is translated 'to be cut'.
- vi. neut.* neutral intransitive verb

Neutral intransitive verbs are defined in their active form. They may also occur with a resultative meaning. Therefore, the verb les is defined 'to split', but it may also mean 'to be split'.

vt.	transitive verb
Pronouns
pron.	pronoun
ind. pron.	independent pronoun
obj. pron.	object pronoun
subj. pron.	subject pronoun
Numerals
num.	numeral
num. cl.	numeral classifier
Demonstratives
dem.	demonstrative
	These words are identified as pointing demonstratives in the PRG.
dem. mod.	demonstrative modifier
dem. pron.	demonstrative pronoun
Prepositions
prep.	preposition
Conjunctions
conj.	conjunction Interrogatives
interr.	interrogative
Negators
neg.	negator
Adverbs
adv.	adverb
conj. adv.	conjunctive adverb
sent. adv.	sentence adverb
Interjections
interj.	interjection
Affixes
aff.	affix
verb. pref.	verbal prefix
verb. suff.	verbal suffix

Several additional grammatical labels are employed in this work but, because of their very low frequency, they have been written out in full and involve no special conventions.

(5) Definitions. Definitions or glosses of headwords are given in English and printed in roman type. Since words from different languages rarely have precisely equivalent meanings, the range of meaning of a Ponapean headword may be conveyed by listing several English words. For example, the headword ahlap is defined 'bulky, stocky, thick, large in girth'. When the meaning of a headword can easily be divided into several related meanings, these meanings are separated by semicolons. Therefore, ketihnain is defined 'to revitalize, to nourish; to augment, as a point in an argument'. In such definitions the most frequently encountered meaning of the headword is listed first, with less common meanings following. Definitions may also include cross references to other entries that will be useful in helping the user understand the headword in question. Thus, the headword emen is defined 'one; see men<sub>3</sub>'. Under men<sub>3</sub>, additional information will be found about the use of the numeral emen.

(6) Phrase or Sentence Examples. Ponapean phrase or sentence examples are included in some entries to illustrate the meaning or grammatical function of the headword. These examples are printed in italics and are followed by English translations printed in roman type, as illustrated below.

Headword	Phrase or Sentence Example
-long	alu walk, aluhlong walk into kai-	Kaido dahlen . Move the dish toward me.

To limit the size and consequently the cost of this dictionary, the use of phrase and sentence examples has largely been restricted to headwords that occur in a bound form, or to those in which such examples are important in understanding the usage of the headword.

(7) Loan Sources. The names of source languages for borrowed words are printed in roman type and are enclosed within square brackets; for example, [Eng.]. Language names rarely employed in this work are written out in full. The names of the four common source languages are abbreviated as follows:

Eng.	English
Ger.	German
Jap.	Japanese
Span.	Spanish

When the source of a word believed to be borrowed is unknown, a question mark is used. When the source of a borrowed word is uncertain, the name of the probable source language is followed by a question mark, as [Eng.?). A word borrowed into Ponapean from a language which in turn borrowed the word from another Ponapean source language is labeled as follows:

Headword	Loan Source
ampangia	[Jap.<Eng.]
komi	[Jap.<Ger.]

Thus, the word ampangia 'umpire' was borrowed into Ponapean from Japanese, which in turn borrowed the word from English. The left-pointing wedge (<) may thus be read as 'borrowed from'. A left-pointing wedge may also be used to signal that part of a headword has been borrowed from another language, as in the following examples.

Introduction

Headword	Loan Source
mahlenih	[ mahlen <Ger.]
pepen kairu	[ kairu <Jap.]

Mahlen 'to paint or to draw' was borrowed from German, but it occurs in the headword above in combination with the Ponapean transitive suffix -ih. Note that within the loan source label, loan words are spelled as they occur in Ponapean, not in the source language.

(8) Cross-References. Entries wherein the headword is grammatically labeled as a verb (adj., vi., vi. neut., or vt.) may end with a cross-reference to another related verb form. For example, if the headword is an intransitive verb and it has a related transitive form, that transitive form will be cross-referenced at the end of the entry. Cross-references may also be made to the adjectival or intransitive forms of a headword that is a transitive verb. These cross-referenced verb forms are preceded by a dash, are printed in boldface type, and are followed by a comma and a label that identifies the grammatical function of the related form. For example:

audaud vi. To be filled, to be loaded. —aude, vt.
aude vt. To fill, to load. —audaud, vi.

Only the grammatical labels adj., vi., and vt. are used after these cross-referenced forms. Whether a cross-referenced intransitive verb is active, resultative, or neutral may be determined by looking at the main entry for that verb.

While it is rare for an entry to contain all eight kinds of information described above, many entries are divided into subentries, each of which may contain separate alternate forms, usage labels, grammatical labels, definitions, and phrase and sentence examples. Examples of entries divided into subentries follow.

- |            |  |
|------------|--|
| Example 1. | engieng 1. adj. Windy. 2. HONORIFIC. adj. Angry. — angiangih , vt.          |
| Example 2. | irail 1. also re. subj. pron. They, plural. 2. also ihr , ind. pron. They, plural. |
| Example 3. | dakadopi , also daka . 1. vi. To high jump. 2. n. High Jump. [Jap.]                |

Note that each subentry is numbered. Information presented before numbered subentries may be interpreted as being applicable to all subentries. Therefore, in example 3, daka is an acceptable alternate form of dakadopi both when it is being used as a noun and as a verb. In example 2, however, the alternate form re is possible only as a subject pronoun, and ihr only as an independent pronoun. Loan source information, as in example 3, is applicable to the entire entry. Cross-references, as in example 1, are always given at the end of the entry, regardless of the number of subentries.

1.3 Locating Affixed Words

Ponapean is a language in which it is possible to form thousands of new words from a single root word through the use of prefixes, suffixes, and reduplication. In most cases, however, it is possible to understand the meanings of these new words if one knows the meaning of the root word and the individual affixes. For example, a word like doudi ‘to climb down’ can be easily understood as a combination of the meanings of the verb dou ‘to climb’ and suffix -di ‘down’. Thus, for purposes of economy, a decision was made by the compilers of this work to include root words and affixes, but generally to exclude affixed words with predictable meanings. The verb dou is consequently included in this work, and so is the suffix -di, but the word doudi is not.

This practice does not mean that root words in combination with affixes are never included in this dictionary. In a few instances affixed words with predictable meanings are entered because of their extremely high frequency. Root words in combination with affixes are regularly included in this work when (1) the addition of the affix results in an unpredictable meaning, (2) the potential of the root word to combine with a particular affix is unpredictable, or (3) the root word always occurs in combination with a particular affix. Therefore, a verb like rukihdi is included as a headword, since its meaning ‘to ambush, to catch in the act’ cannot be accurately predicted from the combined meanings of rukih ‘to peep’ and -di ‘down’. A transitive verb such as deiadih ‘to embroider’ is entered since it is not possible to predict that the intransitive form of this verb, deiad, may combine with the transitive suffix -ih. And, a verb like koasoandi ‘to be organized’ is entered with the suffix -di, because this verb always occurs in combination with this affix.

A consequence of not listing affixed words with predictable meanings is that many words a user might ordinarily encounter in speech or in writing are not listed as headwords in this dictionary. To be able to locate the root words, it is therefore necessary that the user be familiar with Ponapean processes of affixation. A detailed account of affixation in Ponapean is given in the PRG, and most Ponapean affixes are listed separately in this dictionary. A brief summary of the common affixes of Ponapean is also included here as a reference for recognizing affixed words.

Reduplication. Reduplication involves the complete or partial repetition of a word. It is used productively in Ponapean to signal durative aspect. Examples of eleven common patterns of reduplication are listed below.

Introduction

Root Word	Root Word Reduplicated lal	lallal
pa	pahpa
el	elehl
ahn	aiahn
wal	wewal
duhp	duduhp
alu	alialu
liahn	lihliahn
luhmwuhmw	luluhmwuhmw mmwus	mmwummwus
siped	sipisiped

Prefixes. Six common prefixes are employed in Ponapean. These are listed below for quick reference in locating root words. An entry for each of these prefixes is given in the dictionary.

Prefixes

ak-	sa-
ka-	sou <sub>-1</sub>
li-	sou <sub>-2</sub>

Suffixes. Twenty-nine suffixes are listed below. As with the prefixes, a full entry for each of these suffixes is given in the dictionary.

Suffixes

-ehng or -ieng	-long
-ehr or -ier	-n <sub>1</sub>
-ie <sub>1</sub>	-n <sub>2</sub>
-ie <sub>2</sub>	-niki
-iei	-nge
-ira	-pe
-irail	-pene
-iuk or -uhk	-peseng
-ki	-sang
-kit	-seli
-kita	-da
-kitail	-di
-kumwa	-do
-kumwail	-wei
-la

For a discussion of the possessive pronoun suffixes, not listed in the preceding chart, see chapter 4 of the PRG.

Enclitics. In addition to the affixes listed above, four enclitics are also conventionally written attached to the word they follow. These are:

-et or -e	-o
-en	-te

2.0 Ponapean Orthography

Ponapean has been written for well over one-hundred years. Out of this experience has evolved a relatively systematic spelling system. However, as anyone who has had occasion to read or write Ponapean knows, many areas of indecision concerning the spelling of this language still remain. In an effort to deal with these problems, a Ponapean Orthography Workshop was organized in 1972 under the auspices of the Trust Territory government and the Pacific and Asian Linguistics Institute of the University of Hawaii.

The initial meeting of this workshop was conducted in Kolonia, Ponape. Participating were Paulino Cantero, Godaro Gallen, Linter Hebel, Santiago Joab, Ewalt Joseph, Pensile Laurence, Martiniano Rodriguez, and Leonard Santos. Attending as consultants were Harold Hanlin, Kenneth Rehg, and Damian Sohl. The outcome of this first workshop was a set of tentative recommendations regarding spelling practices for Ponapean. The practical implications of these recommendations were studied for one year and, in 1973, a majority of the above-named participants met again in consultation with Harold Hanlin, William McGarry, and Damian Sohl to draft a final set of spelling recommendations. That set of recommendations has served as the basis for the spelling procedures employed both in this work and in the PRG. Details are presented in the PRG, but for the convenience of the user, those recommendations serving as the basis for the alphabet employed in this work are summarized here.

2.1 Dialect Considerations

Ponapean has traditionally employed a basically phonemic writing system—that is, with a few exceptions, one symbol is used to represent one sound. The way words are spelled, therefore, mirrors the way they are pronounced. One difficulty with this procedure, however, is that the pronunciation of words in Ponapean sometimes varies from one area of the island to another. One question that faced the participants in the orthography workshop was which dialect would serve as a standard for spelling, or if indeed any standard at all should be established.

How much dialect variation actually exists in Ponapean has never been fully studied. However, as previously pointed out, two major dialects are easily recognized—the Kiti and the Northern. These two dialects are distinguished from each other primarily on the basis of their vowel systems. In the Northern dialect, a distinction is made between the vowels /e/ (as in /pel/ ‘to steer a canoe’) and /ɛ/ (as in /pel/ ‘to be in a taboo relationship’). In the Kiti dialect, these two vowels are not distinctive. Therefore, it is impossible to find a pair of words where the difference between the vowels /e/ and /ɛ/ results in a difference in meaning. Further, many words that contain /ɛ/ in the Northern dialect are pronounced with the vowel /ɔ/ in the Kiti dialect. It is this characteristic distribution of vowels which most speakers of Ponapean recognize as being the distinguishing feature of the Kiti dialect. The remaining sounds of the two dialects are the same. (See section 2.6.7 of the PRG for further details.)

Since both dialects have served as standards for spelling in the past, and since neither may lay claim to being the prestige dialect of Ponapean, the selection of a spelling standard for Ponapean required careful consideration. Three alternatives were explored. The first was to employ one symbol that could variously stand for /ɛ/ in the Northern dialect and /ɔ/ in the Kiti dialect, to be used in those words where there was dialect variation. The second was to allow all speakers of Ponapean to spell in accordance with their own pronunciation, and the third was to select one of the two dialects as a standard.

The first alternative was rejected because it had been unsuccessfully tried before. The second alternative, which would allow all speakers to write words as they pronounce them, was also rejected because the committee felt that to accept this solution would be to abandon the goal of standardization. Alternative three remained, and the Northern dialect was chosen as the standard. The most important reason for choosing the Northern dialect was that the majority of Ponapeans speak this dialect. In accordance with this recommendation, then, the spellings in this dictionary mirror Northern pronunciation. More specifically, Kolonia area pronunciation has usually served as the model.

2.2 The Alphabet

The alphabet recommended by the workshop participants employs twenty symbols—sixteen single letters and four digraphs. These symbols are listed in Ponapean alphabetical order below.

a e i o oa u h k l m mw n ng p pw r s d t w

It should be noted that this alphabet, or one similar to it, had already gained widespread acceptance prior to the time the workshop was held. It represents a synthesis of at least six alphabetic traditions in Ponape.

A guide to the sounds (or phonemes) these symbols represent is given in the following chart. The symbols of the alphabet are listed in column one. The phonetic norms of the sounds represented by the symbols are described in column two, and example words containing these symbols are listed in column three.

Symbol	Description	Example
a	[a] low central unrounded vowel	kak
e	[e] mid front unrounded vowel	esil or
	[ɛ] lower-mid front unrounded vowel	med
i	[i] high front unrounded vowel	ni
	or
	[y] high front glide	iahd
o	[ɔ] mid back rounded vowel	rong

Introduction

oa	[ɔ] lower-mid back rounded vowel	oale
u	[u] high back rounded vowel	pwung
	or
	[w] high back glide	dahu h	[:] signals vowel length	ah, eh, ih, oh, oah, uh
k	[k] unaspirated voiceless velar stop	kak l	[l] voiced dental lateral	laid m	[m] voiced bilabial nasal	me
mw	[mʷ] velarized voiced bilabial nasal	mwein n	[n] voiced dental nasal	nih ng	[ŋ] voiced velar nasal	ngih
p	[p] unaspirated voiceless bilabial stop	peh pw	[pʷ] unaspirated velarized voiceless bilabial stop	pwihn r	[ʀ] voiced alveolar trill	rahn s	[sʲ] palatalized voiceless alveolar fricative	sahpw d	[t] unaspirated voiceless dental stop	duhp t	[t̚] voiceless retroflexed affricate	tihti
w	[w] high back glide	wini

Note that:

1) The letter e is used to represent both /e/ and /ɛ/. Therefore, /seysey/ and /seisey/ are both spelled seisei. Since such ambiguous spellings are comparatively rare, and since these two sounds do not contrast in Kiti speech, it was recommended that both these sounds be spelled e.

2) The letters i and u are used to represent both vowels and glides. This practice is a long-standing one in Ponapean. The procedures for writing and reading these glides was outlined at the workshop as follows:

- a) /y/ is always written i. In reading, whenever i is (1) preceded by a vowel or h, or (2) is at the beginning of a word and is followed by a vowel, it represents /y/. Elsewhere it represents /i/.
- b) /w/ is written w before vowels and u elsewhere. In reading, u represents /w/ after vowels or h. Elsewhere it represents /u/.

It now seems clear, however, that these spelling principles are based on an oversimplified analysis of Ponapean glides and that, in some cases in word final position, the letters i and u ambiguously represent both vowels and glides. For a further discussion of this problem see section 2.7.3 of the PRG.

3) Ponapean consonants may occur doubled. In this case they are written as they are pronounced, except that /mwmw/ is written mmw. By analogy, /mwpw/ is written mpw.

3.0 About this Dictionary

Since this work represents only an intermediate step toward the goal of producing a comprehensive dictionary of Ponapean, it is important that the user know something about the way it was prepared. The aims of the dictionary and the sources of information it is based on need to be examined to understand what the compilers have tried to accomplish, and, more importantly, what they have left unaccomplished.

3.1 The Aims of the Dictionary

The principal aim of this work is to present an accurate and economical account of the major lexical facts of Ponapean. Therefore, while an attempt has been made to include at least all the commonly used root words and affixes in Ponapean, the number of entries has been a less important consideration than their nature and quality. Certain types of entries have been deliberately excluded. As previously stated, affixed words with predictable meanings are left out, and so are personal names, place names, and most foreign words that have not been fully assimilated into the language. It may be useful to include some entries of these types in future dictionaries, but the immediate purpose of this work is to provide reliable information on the core vocabulary of Ponapean.

A second aim is to provide a linguistic document that, in conjunction with the PRG, will be of use to educators in Ponape. Hopefully, both of these volumes will have value as reference works in designing Ponapean language arts programs. To a lesser extent, they should also prove to be useful in programs for teaching English in Ponape. Additionally, these works may be beneficial to English-speaking students of Ponapean and to scholars of other Pacific languages and cultures.

A final aim is to stimulate interest in the continuation of the dictionary-making process for Ponapean. Many Ponapeans have expressed considerable interest in this work, and some have assisted in its preparation. It is hoped that, as a consequence of circulating this volume in the Ponapean community, still others will be willing to contribute to a second and improved edition.

3.2 Sources of Information

The major source for the information included in this dictionary has been the spoken language. Most of the data came from elicitation sessions with native speakers. Informal conversations and tape recordings of legends, narratives, and radio broadcasts were also monitored for new vocabulary.

The dictionaries of Gulick, Cantero, and Burdick, cited in the Preface, were a second major source of information. Although some of the entries in these dictionaries did not meet the criteria for inclusion in this work, many did, and the compilers owe a great debt to the labors of their predecessors. Also of considerable assistance was a large file of Ponapean words compiled by past employees of the Ponape Department of Education.

Articles and books on Ponape written by other scholars also proved to be of value in this compilation. Three studies were especially valuable. Most of the plant names came from Sydney F. Glassman's book, The Flora of

Introduction

Ponape (Honolulu: Bishop Museum Press, 1952). Many terms relating to traditional Ponapean culture came from Saul H. Riesenberg's Native Polity of Ponape (Washington, D.C.: Smithsonian Institution Press, 1968), and some of the honorific vocabulary came from Paul L. Garvin and Saul H. Riesenberg's article "Respect Behavior on Ponape: An Ethnolinguistic Study" (American Anthropologist 54[2]. Part 1 [201-220].). Publication details of other works consulted in the preparation of both this dictionary and the grammar are listed in the bibliography of the PRG.

To insure the quality of the data collected from all sources, every potential entry in this dictionary was checked by at least two native speakers. Information reported by one speaker or one written source that could not be further verified was excluded. When conflicting information was given, additional speakers were consulted. In all cases, preference was given to the way speakers actually used the language, as opposed to how they thought it should be used. In this respect, descriptive rather than prescriptive accuracy has been the guiding principle in the preparation of this dictionary.

The PONAPEAN-ENGLISH DICTIONARY contains approximately 6,750 Ponapean to English entries. Each entry includes a headword, grammatical information, and one or more English definitions. Where appropriate, alternate spellings of headwords, usage labels, phrase and sentence examples, loan source information, and cross-references to related words are also provided. An English to Ponapean finder list containing approximately 4,200 entries is also included to enable the user to locate key English words used in the definitions in the Ponapean entries.

Designed to serve as a reference volume for native speakers of the language, particularly for Ponapean educators working in bilingual programs, this work will also be of value to English-speaking students of Ponapean and to scholars of other Pacific languages and cultures.

This dictionary was prepared as a companion volume to the PONAPEAN REFERENCE GRAMMAR by the same authors.

KENNETH L. REHG is project coordinator of the Bilingual Education Program for Micronesia with the Social Science Research Institute at the University of Hawaii.

DAMIAN G. SOHL, a native speaker of Ponapean, is federal programs coordinator for the Department of Education in Kolonia, Ponape.
